Michelob Ultra and the American Hiking Society awarded a grant of $21,800 to the Santa Monica Mountains Trails Council (SMMTC) through participation in the "Go The Extra Mile Fund" initiative. These funds will support improvements and maintenance of the Backbone Trail (BBT) within the Santa Monica Mountains National Recreational Area.

Aiming to give a BBT user a satisfying entry/exit to the trail, these improvements include information kiosks with a BBT map, picnic tables, trash cans and improved signage. Not all improvements will apply to every trailhead but will be applicable depending on usage and accessibility.

Implementation will be performed by a team comprising agency representatives, SMMTC members, and volunteer organizations. SMMTC will manage the projects and provide much of the funding for materials using the proceeds from the Michelob Ultra Extra Mile grant. Volunteer organizations, comprising Boy Scout Eagle projects, will implement the improvements and supplement funding for materials. Four projects will be rolling out in the next few months. Updates will be posted on our Facebook page. Stay Tuned!

Last Spring I asked, "Where was all the rain we expected?" The rains bypassed us last year but more than made up for it this year! Water was flowing over our previously dry waterfalls; streams were overflowing their banks, lots of mud damaged trails and at last our flowering plants are blooming as if to make up for lost time. If you spend enough time on the trails, you may notice that in the year following a fire, debris sweeps over stream beds and can spread as a nice even layer over the previous channel. The first storms of 2017 created laser-like one to three foot deep channels in many areas and often took sections of the trail with it. Some locations experienced slides when water-saturated earth slid across trails. When the water table could not hold another drop, water pooled on flatter segments leaving behind lots of mud - making travel messy for those who would not wait for the water to dissipate. Avoidance of mud sets off a chain-reaction of users going around this obstacle and making the path wider. Just when it could not seem to get worse, another set of storms re-arranged the canyon floors in many locations obliterating sections of trail! All this rain creates lots of work for our trail crew and reinforces the trail worker’s goals of "channeling water off the trail." Drains, swales, reverse grades and other methods of diverting water are the tools we use to preserve our trails from erosion. We may think of our trails as permanent, but they are permanent only when we work together to maintain them. Trail Days - April 28-30 - will be one such event where we repair damage to trails done by our Winter storms. Please come out and join us this year!

Working with other members of the trail crew is an excellent way to meet like-minded individuals. It is also a way to re-experience the trail because one of the best ways to become familiar with our trails is to work on them. When hiking, biking, running or riding a horse on our trails, it is so easy to get focused on a destination, heart rate, speed, a conversation or only the path ten feet in front of you. When working a trail, you observe things you might ignore - finding undulations where the trail appears to slope up or down, rocks and plants often hide insects, bugs or snakes. Concentrate your attention on a small segment of the world for a moment and learn the names of the plants you are trimming. These plants are common enough and you are likely to encounter them time and again. That blur of purple is a large mass of individual Wild Hyacinth flowers - an important food source for the Chumash. When you tire of digging, chopping, raking and moving dirt around, note your surroundings. Can you view other trails you’ve traveled from your location? Can you follow where this trail goes? From my experience, you should be able to observe something for the first time no matter how many times you travel the same path.

Now more than ever we can use your help to repair trails for all to enjoy. Please take a look at our trail maintenance schedule and pick a date to come work with us on our shared passion! We look forward to seeing you on the trails. Thank you and "Happy Trails to You."

2016 Trail Crew Highlights

In some respects, our most significant accomplishment of the year was working with NPS to complete the last segment of the Backbone Trail, just in time for its designation as a National Recreation Trail. In short order, the Etz-Meloy bypass was surveyed and rough cut before several dozen volunteers came in and put the finishing touches on the trail. We now have a completed Backbone Trail running from Will Rogers State Historic Park to La Jolla Canyon in Point Mugu State Park. Volunteers from many organizations including the SMMTC played a huge part in the realization of this dream. We held twenty-two work events on various segments of the BBT in 2016.

The combination of the Springs Fire in 2013 and ongoing drought continues to fell trees in the park. The trail crew spent many extra days clearing downed trees and large limbs off of trails. It is sad to see how many trees we have lost this past couple of years. Donations to the Santa Monica Mountains Trails Council (SMMTC) enabled us to purchase gas powered pole saws and other tools to clear the trails of these fallen trees.

Part of our success is due to our crew leaders—as a group, they averaged 225 hours per person last year. That effort shows some serious dedication to our trails and we are most appreciative of them!

Comings and Goings on the Board

After many years of service, Ed Stauss and Jeanne Wallace have chosen to leave the Santa Monica Mountains Trails Council (SMMTC) Board of Directors.

Jeanne Wallace has served in many capacities since the SMMTC came into existence back in the 1970's! Jeanne served as the first treasurer in 1976, Vice President from 2010 to 2015 and on many committees. As an equestrian concerned with trails and access to those trails, Jeanne worked with other equestrians to help form the SMMTC. As other trail users joined the SMMTC, Jeanne became an essential member of the equestrian coalition - providing respect and guidance while reaching out to newcomers.

Ed Stauss has been the editor of our newsletters and brochures as well as our director of publicity for many years. His attention to detail and ability to articulate our message greatly benefited our organization. Thank you for making us look good!

Joining the board are Anne Russell and Don Brusselars. Anne is a health and fitness journalist and a former editor in chief of the women’s fitness magazine Shape. Anne has volunteered more than one hundred and fifty hours as a regular on our trail crew.

Don Brusselars, a retired Aerospace employee, is a long-time geocacher who found his way into the SMMTC orbit by working with our dedicated trail crew. In his first year working as a volunteer, Don worked more than one hundred and fifty hours!
